'The Hoche' was an early battleship of the French Navy. She used the 340mm/28 Modele 1881 gun as her main armament like the Marceau class which followed. 'The Hoche' was completed with a heavy but unarmored superstructure that resulted in her being top heavy and she was later lightened. In 1892 off Marseilles, 'The Hoche' collided with the steamship 'Marechal Canrobert' which sank with the tragic loss of 107 lives. On December 2nd 1913 the battleship 'Hoche' was sunk as practice target by the battleships 'Jaureguiberry' and the 'Pothuau.'
 Builder: Lorient. Launched: 29 September 1886. Fate: Broken up in 1910
